ROBERT W. LAMBUTH.—Many hearts besides those in the community where he more recently labored and fell at his post, will be saddened at the announcement of the sudden death of this young and faithful minister of Christ. He came to Canton July 25, at the solicitation of the pastor, to assist in a protracted meeting. His friends in the country opposed his coming, as there were occasional cases of cholera in the place; but he replied, that he was not alarmed about the cholera, though he might possibly take it; that he recognized the invitation as a call of duty, and that he would rather "wear out than rust out." He labored with acceptability and zeal during the meeting; was fully in the spirit of his mission; and improved even casual opportunities of talking to persons upon the subject of religion, eliciting the observation, that he was "instant in season and out of season." He preached on Sabbath morning, from Joshua vii. 25—subject, "Sin a very troublesome thing"—with good effect, and visited that evening, and prayed with an old friend, who was sick with premonitory symptoms of cholera. The meeting closing on the Sabbath, he left town next morning for Mrs. Chandler Ford's, where the family was, was taken with cholera on Tuesday morning, and died that evening, after excruciating suffering, in the thirty-fourth year of his age. While all who knew him are well aware that few were better prepared for the change than he was, and that the loss to the Church was his eternal gain, still, we can but wonder at the mysterious Providence that removed, even in the very midst of his usefulness, so promising and holy a preacher of righteousness. He was descended from a religious stock, and may have been said, like Timothy, to have "known, from a child, the Holy Scriptures." From his father, the late saintly Rev. John R. Lambuth, he inherited great gentleness, and under his holy example and judicious training, he was nurtured into an early piety and consecrated life. He was received as a minister of Jesus, into the Mississippi Conference, in the fall of 1855, the session being held in Vicksburg, and was appointed to Natchez station, as junior preacher. In 1857–58, he was in charge of Tallula circuit, in Washington county. While on this circuit he proved himself an acceptable and successful minister, by endearing himself to the people, and by enlarging the borders of Zoin in that unpromising field. On January 5, 1858, he was married to Miss Kate Bridger, of Claiborne county, who proved herself a helpmeet indeed, cheerfully bearing the privations of the itinerancy, and devoting herself to his work. In 1859, and 1860, he was appointed to Yazoo City. Some fears were expressed that his youth and inexperience would make this appointment unsuitable, but the venerable Dr. Drake, under whose presidency he was returned, said that he would underwrite for him; and according to the prediction, he made himself acceptable, and had a sweeping revival in his charge.

In 1861-62, he labored on the Mt. Olivet Circuit, Yazoo county. In 1863, he was permitted, on account of the disorganization caused by the war, to form for himself a colored mission in the neighborhood of his former work. In 1864-65, he had charge of Livingston and Pearl River Circuit; in 1866, Vernon and Livingston; in 1867, Clinton Circuit, from which he went up to give an account of his stewardship. His Heavenly Father seemed lately to have been preparing him for his exit; his wife states that more than usual, even for him, has he been given to pra er during this year, and that frequently he would ask her and little Robert to accompany him to the grove, and would there unite in prayer for them, himself, and the church. During his brief sojourn in Canton, his conversation was almost exclusively upon the subject of religion; and he more than once remarked that heaven seemed nearer to him now since his father was there. We called together, on Monday, on a family that was dear to him, with whom he had religious service, praying with unction and fervor. Coming from thence to the preacher's study, just for a moment, to get his baggage, he again proposed prayer. On the morning of the day of his death, he insisted upon getting up to hold family worship, and could with difficulty be persuaded that he was too weak to do so. He did not seem fully to realize that he was going to die, but said several times to his wife, and to the Rev. Dr. Stewart—who was with him a short time before his death—that all was clear and bright before him. Brother Lambuth's chief characteristics were purity of motive, sweetness of disposition, and harmlessness of life. Those who knew him well were reminded of the Saviour's estimate of Nathanael: "Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile." His preaching was remarkable most for earnestness, unction and practicability; and his own life was its most successful application. He was a good pastor; made it his duty to visit religiously, and had the peculiar gift of introducing and recommending Christianity. As an evidence of this latter, several persons, during his stay in Canton, spoke of his conversation upon religion as having a peculiar effect upon them, and it is believed that this effect will be made, by his death, indelible. His devoted young wife and promising boy, in his eighth or ninth year, are entitled to the tender sympathy and earnest prayers of the Church.

HENRY D. BERRY, son of the Rev. Thomas Berry, was born May 30, 1825, at Camden, S. C., and converted at a revival meeting held at his birth place, 1839. Anxious to make manifest his gratitude to God for his blessing, he was, at the age of seventeen, appointed class leader. His zeal for God's glory was not confined to the circle of his own class-room, but sought a wider range in this, (and in the capacity of an exhorter,) at several appointments on the circuit. Such were his piety, zeal and eloquence, at this early period, that crowds attended his meetings; many were cut to the heart, and led to Jesus, while the membership was greatly edified. At this time he felt called to preach, but excused himself on the score of youth, limited education, and lack of confidence in himself. Moving to Mississippi after the death of his parents, he settled in or near Camden. Here, for a time, he sought to keep his conscience quiet by diligent attention to private devotion, but meanwhile following Jesus afar off. He spent some time at labor, in a blacksmith shop, then as clerk in a store; all this time, Jonah-like, fleeing from his whole duty. He was recognized by all there as a pious young man, even by associates of the same age; and for a time he was alone, as a Christian professor, in that community. While thus seeking to compromise with his conscience, the Rev. H. H. Montgomery held a protracted meeting at Camden. Brother Berry was much revived, yet still resisting the sacred call. Without his request, the Church recommended his name to the Quarterly Conference, held September, 1854, for license to preach. He made resistance until a faithful warning from Brother Montgomery caused him to yield. License was granted, also a recommendation for admission into the Mississippi Annual Conference, held at Jackson, La., 1854. Being received on trial, he was sent to a Colored Mission in Madison county. During this year—1855—he made it convenient to attend Madison College, at Sharon, Miss. As a student, he was diligent and faithful, beloved by the faculty and students; and as a Christian, he left a holy impress upon all with whom he came in contact. He was, in due time, ordained a deacon and elder, and up to the time of his death, labored on the effective list. The Churches of St. Helena, Carthage, Attala, Camden, Franklinton, Pearl River and Holmesville Circuits can testify to his piety, zeal and usefulness. While he felt it his duty to use the pulpit as the central standpoint in declaring God's counsel, he ever considered a pair of stout saddle-bags, well filled with religious literature, an able auxiliary. While on the Franklin Circuit, (first-time), he sold and gave away upward of $1,200 worth of good books. In him our Advocates have lost a faithful, prompt agent. Brother Berry's talents were not of the highest order, yet he possessed no ordinary mind. As a declaimer he had superiors, but as a patient, laborious, humble and faithful pastor, he excelled. His piety was not what might be ter ned demonstrative, yet was permanent, placid, and aud heavenly—a living exponent of the Holy One. The longer you were with him, the more you were convinced that "he had been with Jesus." A man of strong faith in the simple word of God, "it is written," was ground enough for his confidence. His last work—Holmesville Circuit—demanded his p esence at the bedside of the stricken ones of his flock at Summit, Miss., during the late epidemic. Here he caught the contagion, and after a brief illness, entered into rest October 26, 1867, at his residence, Johnson's Station, Pike county, Miss. During his illness, on one occasion he remarked to his wife: 'Do not feel anxious about me; I have always tried to live ready to die." O ving to some peculiarity in his disease he was in a stupor for some few days, and passed away so, without giving timely indication that his end was near. Like a sudden peal of thunder on a clear day, a wife, three little daughters, and a beloved, aged sister, (loved by him like a mother) were aroused to the stern, startling fact that his Master had called for him. Thus, without any demonstration at death, he leaves a holy life to testify that his faith was well founded.

Ques. 15. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration?

Their names were called over, one by one, and their characters examined and passed, except James Maclennan, who was suspended from ministerial functions for one year; and Charles A. McNeil, who was expelled from the ministry and the Church.

Ques. 16. What is the number of preachers and members in the several circuits, stations and missions of the Conference?
